

Why Lakeshore Bankruptcy Center?

We have a full-time office in Holland, Michigan.

Clients will meet with the Marcia R. Meoli, an experienced local attorney.

Our staff keeps up on the practical aspects of the bankruptcy world and can help with many problems, even if Marcia is away at court or creditor meetings.

We have a system designed to understand each client's financial situation, so that we can give sound advice and avoid costly problems and surprises.

Marcia serves as a chapter 7 bankruptcy trustee, so she sees many cases all the time. She knows the system and the people involved.

We work hard to get clients through the system in way that is understandable and comfortable, knowing that sometimes legal issues are complicated and stressful.

Our process

We do not charge for the first consultation. There, we will get a general understanding of the client's assets and debts and other financial information. We review all the alternatives for the client. Usually, we are able to make recommendations of what looks like the best way(s) to go.

At the second consultation, Marcia will review pertinent documents with the client and begin the process of drafting the documents needed to start the bankruptcy proceeding. She is able to immediately identify any problems that she sees and discuss solutions to those problems.

Once the documents are ready, the client comes in and has as much time as needed to read them and review them with Marcia. When they are accurate and complete, we sign and then start the bankruptcy proceeding.

We shepherd the case to completion after filing. This includes appearing with the debtor at the meeting of creditors, any confirmation or other hearings, so that the client can get their discharge of debt.
